A Daughter's Story: Dealing With Mom's Alzheimer's

Caring for a loved one with dementia or Alzheimer's is not an easy task. First there is disbelief, and then comes family squabbling. Finally there are the many tasks that mount up as caregiving can become a full-time occupation. As she lost a bit more of her mother every day, author Geraldine McCall explains her family's struggles while dealing with her mother's diagnosis of Alzheimer's.

Nora Scruggs McCall was a deeply religious woman who never lost her faith that God was always in control and that everything would work out. Even as her dementia progressed, Nora continued working as a volunteer grandmother. She also continued attending church services at Mount Calvary Baptist Church every weeknight and on Sundays. As Nora goes into decline, the role of caregiver falls to her second eldest daughter, Gerry, who must try to unite her four siblings on how to handle their mother's health care decisions and eventually how to settle her estate.

A Journey Through Dementia/Alzheimer's Disease will resonate with anyone who has cared for a family member suffering from Alzheimer's or dementia. The art of caring can make a big difference.
